

Plenary Talk

MASSIVE STARS: FROM BABY TWINS TO COALESCING BLACK HOLES

Selme E. de Mink¹

¹ University of Amsterdam

Massive stars are powerful sources of feedback, light beacons allowing us to study the most distant galaxies and some of them end their lives as binary black holes. I will try to connect the lessons we learned from observing very young regions full of massive stars with exciting new insight in their evolutionary endpoints as compact objects.